BULLETIN No. 285

CANNED CORN

OTTAWA, April 7, 1914.

WM. HIMSWORTH, Esq.,
Deputy Minister, Inland Revenue.

SIR,—I beg to hand you a report upon 205 samples of Canned Corn, purchased by our Inspectors in November, December and January last.

Many enquiries have been lately made regarding the weight of the contents of the tin container in which corn is packed; the use of starch in the packing liquid, the employment of Saccharin as a sweetener, and of sulphurous acid or sulphites for bleaching the corn.

It will be noted that the contents of these cans are of very uniform weight, and approximate 20 ounces net.

Saccharin is entirely absent.

Sulphites in more than traces are found in 50 samples or about 25 per cent. of the whole number examined.

The last inspection of this article was made in 1911 and is reported in Bulletin No. 226. Thirty-one per cent of a collection of 146 samples showed sulphites to be present at that time.

The following paragraphs from the introduction to Bulletin No. 226 are applicable here:—

The question of the use of sulphurous acid (the acid present in sulphites) in foods is a very important one. Some information regarding the matter will be found in Bulletin 126, pp. 24-26, published in 1906. In the intervening five years, a great deal of investigation has been carried on; and a good deal of legislation has resulted, much of this has been proved to be hasty, in the sense of having been undertaken without full knowledge of the matters treated, and has had to be amended or has remained inoperative. (See F.I.D., No. 89, U.S., Department of Agriculture.)

That sulphurous acid is a poison, is perfectly well ascertained but that it acts deleteriously on the human system in the minute quantity present in corn, has not been demonstrated. Much of the sulphite introduced as a bleaching agent is oxidized to sulphate, and thus rendered harmless. Free sulphurous acid is further got rid of in the process of cooking the corn, and it is certain that only very minute traces can remain in the article as served at the table. While I do not think that we are in possession of incontrovertible evidence to justify legislative interference in the matter of the employment of sulphites in food, I believe the question to be of such consequence as to demand further and very careful investigation; and in the meantime, I would recommend that, in all case where acid sulphites, or sulphurous acid has been used in the preparation of food products, a declaration of such fact should appear on the label.

It is satisfactory to note that the employment of sulphurous acid in bleaching corn appears to be on the decrease; and I am informed by several large manufacturers that they have entirely discontinued its use. Apart altogether from the question of harmfulness to health, the article is not improved in food value by being bleached and its appetizing character is not enhanced by destruction of the beautiful yellow colour natural to the corn.

Legislation has recently been recommended which requires that, when sulphurous acid (or sulphites) is used as a bleach the fact of such use must be declared on the label.

It is usual to put up the corn with a liquid to which starch has been added. I am unable to discover any intention to defraud the consumer, in this practice. The starch commonly employed is that natural to the corn itself. In the light of present knowledge no further comment upon this feature can be usefully made.

The following letter of the Acting Chairman of the Board of Food and Drug Inspection at Washington, printed in Service and Regulatory Announcements for January, 1914, will show how the matter is regarded in the United States:—

"DEAR SIR,—The Board has been advised that the following situation confronts the canners of corn in certain sections of the country:—

"The corn has ripened very late, and, in spite of the fact that the corn is of the finest quality and flavour, it lacks sufficient starch to pack properly on account of the fact that the liquids will separate from the solids in the canning, and, therefore, in order to produce a satisfactory product it is necessary to add cornstarch to the extent of 1 to 1½ per cent.

"In the opinion of the Board, on the facts as stated, and, if no inferiority of the corn is concealed, this addition would be permitted, under regulation 25, section 7 (a), which states that 'When a substance of a recognized quality commonly used in the preparation of a food or drug product is replaced by another substance not injurious or deleterious to health, the name of the substituting substance shall appear upon the label.' If a product, prepared as indicated, were plainly labelled 'Sweet Corn with added Starch,' there would not appear to be any violation of the Food and Drugs Act.

"It is, however, plain to the Board that starch may be added to sweet corn in a manner whereby inferiority is concealed, and whereby water is added, which addition of starch would clearly constitute a violation of the Act. The canners are, however, familiar with the conditions under which they are working, and the Board is not; the canners should, therefore, be able to decide the proper course from the above statement of facts.

"Very respectfully.

"A. S. MITCHELL,

"Acting Chairman, Board of Food and Drug Inspection."

I beg to recommend publication of this report as Bulletin No. 295.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ALP. LEMOINE,

Acting Chief Analyst.
